Program Description

The Health Science and Public Health Associate of Science degree is designed for students seeking admission into professional programs such as surgical technology, nursing, and respiratory therapy, and/or transferring into a four-year program in public health, medicine, dentistry, clinical laboratory science, physical therapy, or a career in a health-related field.

Completion of the program is designed to result in an Associate of Science degree and meets the general-education requirements at all Idaho public universities. Course selection should be coordinated to meet requirements for your intended transfer institution (if known).
